HIGH WYCOMBE PARISH CHURCH.

PART II.

Brasses, Monuments, and Inscriptions.

IN THE CHURCHYARD.

The oldest tombstone in the churchyard is opposite the door of the south transept, and bears the date 1685. The inscription is now illegible, but concludes with these lines:—

Here lies one whose reste Gives me a restlesse life, Because I've lost a kinde And verteuous wyfe.

Near the Bower Chapel is the following inscription on a tombstone:—

In memory of Mr. Thomas Áldridge Alderman of this Corporation, who departed this Life the 28th of August 1783, in the 90th year of his Age. Of no distemper, of no blast he died but fell like Autumn fruit that's mellow'd long, even wonder'd at because he dropt no sooner. Providence seem'd to wind him up for fourscore years yet ran he on nine Winters more. till like a Clock worn out with beating time the Wheels of weary life at last stood still.

Reader reflect. The longest life will quickly fly And launch thee in eternity. In the part of the churchyard cut off by Castle Street, on an upright stone:—

AHMUTY MAYNE,
A Native of Ardcarne near Carrick on Shannon
In the Kingdom of Ireland
Thirty years an Inhabitant of this Town
where he died Jany 17th 1814
Aged 76 years.

On the other side: -

Beneath lie the Wives of
AHMUTY MAYNE
MARY, died Augst 10th 1793,
Aged 60 years.

JANE AMELIA, died Sept. 11th 1801. Aged 38 years.

Lydia, died Nov. 2d 1808 Aged 50 years.

Ahmuty Mayne was a gentleman of means who came to live in Wycombe in 1784. His experience of matters conjugal was more extensive and varied than that which falls to the lot of most mortals. Upon the death of his first wife, being at that time above sixty years old, he married secondly a youthful damsel a little more than half his own age. In about two years he again found himself all forlorn, and took unto himself a third spouse; but she likewise went the way of all flesh, and once more he was left desolate. Not daunted, however, by these reverses, he determined, although now past the threescore years and ten allotted to man, to venture once more to embark upon the sea of matrimony, and on espousing his fourth wife this facetious notability caused to be engraved upon the wedding ring:—

I've buried three To marry thee; If I survive, I'll marry five.

But he didn't.

In the same part of the churchyard is another upright stone upon which is engraved:—

Mary Havergal, died February 24th 1850. Aged 78.

Her husband
WILLIAM HAVERGAL
died September 2nd 1854;
Aged 89.

Their only children,
The Rev. W. H. Havergal, A.M.
and Mrs. Prestage, erect this tablet to their memory.

"Blessed be the name of the Lord"
Job i. 21.

On a stone in the north part of the churchyard:—
On the east side:—

The Revd John Smithson who preached the Gospel to the dissenting congregation in this Town upwards of forty years, Died January the 1st 1789:

Aged 64 years.

Also of JOHN CARTER, Upwards of Fifty Years an Eider and Deacon of the Church assembling in Crendon Lane Meeting House, (of which the before mentioned were Pastors) who died on the 5th day of December 1817. Aged 90 years.

"He purchased to himself a good degree and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus."—1 Tim. iii. 15.

Also of Mary Carter widow of the above who died the 3rd day of June 1839 : Aged 84 years.

On the west side:—

Hic sepultus est
JOHANNES POWNALL
Sacri Evangelii in hoc Oppido Minister
Annos circiter quadraginta.
Vir in sacris Literisque humanis
Admodum eruditus:
Concionator eximius:
Pastor fidelis & vigilans:
Insignis vere ad Laudem
Pietatis Exemplum.
Obiit Die Decembris ij
Anno Dom. 1742. Etatis 70.

In the same part of the churchyard, near the chancel, are a couple of stones thus inscribed:—

Here lies the Body of
RALPH DEAN
one of the Aldermen of this Corporation
who died in his fifth Mayoralty
upon the 15th day of Jan.
1766 in the lxxxii year of his Age.

In memory of Mr. RALPH DEAN who died Sent. the 9th 1775

Aged 49 years.

The following anecdote is related concerning the above: On Sept. 25, 1746, John Wesley came to Wycombe and preached to a vast concourse of people, and it being the day for the election of mayor, the preacher was frequently interrupted by those who had made too free with the good cheer provided for them on that occasion. The mayor was applied to by the divine to bring one of the rabble to justice as a common swearer for breaking the law. His worship inquired who he was, and what was his name. On being informed that it was Ralph Dean, he exclaimed in astonishment: "Ralph Dean! Ralph Dean! Why, that's my son. Well, I have nothing to say in his defence; if he breaks the law he must take what follows."

IN THE CHURCH.

Brasses.

There was formerly a large number of brasses in this church, the figures belonging to which were ruthlessly torn away during the period of the Great Rebellion. Before the last restoration there were in different parts of the church several ancient slabs, containing the matrices wherein the figures had been fixed. In the Bower Chapel was a stone with the impressions of two brasses upon it, and within the sanctuary another slab, from which three figures and their inscriptions had been torn off. In the north transept were three very old slabs, on which there had been at one time six brasses. These and some other ancient slabs were removed to the church-yard at the time of the last restoration.

The stone containing the matrices of three brasses is probably the one referred to in the following extract from the will of John Wilcocks, of Chipping Wycombe, dated July 5, 1506:—" My body to be buried in the church of All Hallondon, in Wyō, before the Rood. To repair our Lady's Chapel of my Grant, xxiijs. ivd. I will that my executors pay the charge of new glazing the window in the said chapel; also I will that an obit be kept yearly. I will that my executors buy a marble stone to lay on my grave, with the picture of my two wives, of vii. foot in length, the stones mentioning their sons Thomas and Michael Wilcocks. I appoint Walter, my son, my executor, and also Robert Ashebrooke and Robert Brampton, Priest, and John Alley, my executors."

Robert Ashebrooke and John Alley were both of them Mayors of Wycombe, temp. Henry VII. and Henry

VIII.

In Willis's MSS, is an Indulgence from Richard de Gravesend, Bishop of Lincoln, dated at Fingest in 1273, for the reparation of St. Mary's Chapel in the churchyard of Wycombe.

There remain at present three inscriptions in brass affixed to the south wall of the Bower Chapel, whither they were removed when the interior of the church was last restored. The following inscription in old English characters was formerly in the floor of the south aisle of the nave:—

Here under lyeth buried the bodye of Margaret Trone, the daughter of — Trone and An his wife. who deceased be first of Novemb—1588.

The brass plate, inscribed as follows, was originally inside the rails in front of the altar:—

Heere leyeth the body of Robert Kempe, whoe departed this life the 28th November, Ano. Dni. 1621. Wife, children, wealth, this world & life forsaken, In silent dust I sleepe, whence once awaken, My Sauiour's might a glorious change shall giue, So, loosing all, I gayne, and dying, liue. My fame I trust the world with, for 'tis true, Posterity giues euery man his due.

Another brass, formerly in the floor of the Bower Chapel, is thus inscribed:—

In memory of ye trvly vertvovs & faithfyll wifes of Iohn Lane, of this towne, Margery & Mary.

As earth to bodyes soe heaven to sacred sovles the center Though this ye one by death yet yt ye other by heavenly life doth

As when all finite times by God's decree are spent,
Then shall such sovles most gloriously resume what nature lent;
Undoubtedly such is & suche shalbe the blisse of these two saints;
Such pious actors of faith & religion's fruits noe sin attaints,
As there by grace in Christ you live in glorye's lasting fame,
So here by love your honord vertices gaine a never-dying name.

In various parts of the chancel and its aisles—chiefly in the Bower Chapel—there used to be several small diamond-shaped slabs, measuring about a foot across. They were all of the eighteenth century, and bore such short inscriptions as the following:—

"E. Smith, 1792;" "A. B. ;" "M. R., 1740;" "W. W.;" "F. S., Mar. ye 18th, 1733, D. S.;" "M. T., January ye 10th, 1756."

A square tablet of white marble affixed to the south wall contains the following brief inscription:—

JOHN
HAMILTON MORTIMER
Esq^r.
Obt Feby 4th 1779
Ætatis Suæ 38.

Mortimer was the painter of the large picture, "St. Paul preaching to the Britons," now in the Council Chamber at the Town Hall, High Wycombe. It was presented to Wycombe Church, in 1778, by an intimate friend of the artist, Dr. Bates, of Little Missenden, and formed the altar-piece until the insertion of the present east window to the memory of the late Lord Carrington, when it was removed to the position it now occupies. Mortimer was first interred at Aylesbury, and subsequently removed to Wycombe, and his remains placed beneath the chancel in front of the altar. They were afterwards removed into the family vault of the Welles' by permission of Mr. and Mrs. Westwood, when the Carrington vault was being constructed.

BOWER CHAPEL.

East Wall.

On a base of variegated marble a white marble tablet, thus inscribed:—

This monument is erected
To perpetuate the memory of
Mrs. SARAH SHRIMPTON,
The beloved Wife of Thomas Shrimpton Esqr.
A Native of this Borough.
She departed this life
On the twenty-eighth day of May,
In the year of our Lord MDCCLXXXIII
And in the xlivth Year of her Age.
To the inexpressible Grief
Of her Family and Friends.

"Blessed are dead that die in the Lord."

1. Hear what a Voice from Heaven proclaims,

For all the pious Dead; Sweet is the Savour of their Names, And soft their sleeping Bed.

- They die in Jesus, and are bless'd How kind their slumbers are;
 From Sufferings and from Sins releas'd;
 And free from every Snare.
- Far from this World of Toil and Strife, They're present with the Lord; The Labours of their mortal Life, End in a large reward.
- Peace all our angry Passions then!
 Let each rebellious Sigh
 Be silent at the Sovereign Will,
 And every murmur die.—Watts.

This is surmounted by a sarcophagus, standing on lion's feet, and having a plain medallion in front. Above is an inverted flambeau, and a winged female figure, standing by a funereal urn, holding a portrait medallion in her left hand, and pointing to a crown fixed near the apex of a triangular piece of dark marble which forms the background of the upper portion of the monument, which was erected by Rd. Westmacott, of London, in 1784.

On a neat tablet, surmounted by a funereal urn partly covered with a winding sheet, by A. Moore, sculptor, of Paddington, London:—

Sacred
To the Memory of ELIZA,
the beloved wife of HENRY WHEELER, Esquire,
of Wycombe Marsh,
who departed this life Augt 6th 1852,
Aged 38 years.

I heard the voice of Jesus say,
Come unto Me and rest;
Lay down, thou weary one, lay down
Thy head upon My breast.
I came to Jesus as I was,
Weary, and worn, and sad,
I found in Him a resting place,
And He has made me glad.

On a white marble tablet, enriched with decorative emblems of his profession, a casque or helmet, sword, and banner, and within a wreath of laurel, the words "Ladoeira," "Salamanca," is this inscription:—

Captain WILLIAM WHITE of His Majesty's 13 regt of Light Dragoons, and D.A.Q.M.G. of Cavalry, under his Grace the Duke of Wellington, was mortally wounded at the battle of Salamanca, the 22nd of July, 1812, in the 30th year of his age. Of whom his brave companions in arms have borne honourable testimony that "he fell nobly, acting with distinguished bravery in a glorious cause, with a character unblemished as a man. and, as a soldier, adorned with unsullied integrity and undaanted courage!" a testimony amply corroborated by the official Gazettes of Sept. 18th, 1810, and May 9th, 1812. He survived until the night of the 23rd, and ere he breathed his last had the satisfaction of knowing that he died as he had lived, the companion of victory!

Lieutenant GILLESPIE WHITE,
of the same regiment,
twin brother of the above,
and holding similar rank

Near this place are deposited the remains of George Clavering, Esq. of Greencroft, in the parish of Lanchester, and County of Durham.

He was the second son of Sir James Clavering, of Axwell Park, in the said County, Bart. and died at High Wycombe on his journey from Bath, the 22nd day of May 1794, Aged 73 years.

The large monument in the north chancel aisle is to the memory of Henry Petty, Earl of Shelburne, and was erected at a cost of about £2,000, which sum was bequeathed by the Earl's will for that purpose. It is a splendid work of art by the celebrated sculptor Scheemakers, about 26 feet high, reaching from the floor to the roof. It consists of an altar pedestal, bearing a large sarcophagus of grey marble, upon which reclines the statue of the Earl with the figure of Religion by his side, holding an open book in her left hand. The front of the sarcophagus bears a medallion containing a bust inscribed to Sir William Petty, the Earl's father, and founder of the family. On each side of the monument there are two circular columns with richly ornamented capitals, supporting a pointed architrave, upon the apex of which is a large vase filled with delicately sculptured foliage and flowers, and upon one side reclines the figure of Justice, and upon the other side that of Truth. Immediately under the arch is a shield bearing the family arms, ermine, on a bend azure, a magnetic needle pointing to the Polar star, and a little below two cherubs among clouds of white marble, holding a crown over the head of the expiring nobleman. Standing upon the pedestal to the left of the sarcophagus is the figure of a male in Roman senatorial robes by the side of a statue of Charity, seated and holding an infant at her breast. To the right are statues of Virtue and Wisdom guiding a child in front of them. The monument is composed entirely of marble, the sarcophagus, pillars, arch, &c., being of variously coloured stone, and the twelve figures of white marble—all life size. There is a long inscription on the lower portion of the monument, which reads as follows:

> To the Memory of Henry Petty, Earl of Shelburne, Son of Sir William Petty.

His Lordship married Arabella Boyle, Daughter of Charles Lord Clifford, Son and Heir-Apparent of Charles Earl of Cork & Burlington, by whom he had Issue, Julia, who died unmarried, aged xxiii years; Charles, who died at the age of xii years. Anne, who married Francis Bernard, Esq., of Castle Bernard, in the Kingdom of Ireland, and died at the age of xxx years, leaving no issue. James, Lord Viscount Dunkerron, who married Elizabeth Clavering, Daughter and Coheiress of Sir John Clavering, in the bishoprick of Durham; William-Henry, and Mary, who both died in their infancy. James, Lord Viscount Dunkerron, died in the fortieth year of his age; Elizabeth, his wife, in the thirty-second, and with their only Son, who died an infant, lie buried beneath this Monument. Henry, Earl of Shelburne, having survived his Wife & Children, bequeathed his Fortune to John Fitzmaurice, second Son of his sister Anne Countess of Kerry, on condition of his taking the sirname of Petty, and died in the lxxviiith year of his age. He and Arabella his Wife lie buried also under this monument.

This monument was erected by Slingsby Bethel, Esq., Alderman of London, & William Monck, of the Middle temple, London, Esq., his lordship's executors, 1754.

John, Earl of Shelburne caused the monument to be enclosed by an iron railing in the following year.

The subjoined pedigree will afford an explanation of this monument and also of the one in the Bower Chapel. It is somewhat curious to note that although the Earl of Shelburne, who was Prime Minister in 1782, was buried in Wycombe Church, there is neither monument nor inscription to his memory. This may have been owing to the fact that the family had removed from Wycombe before his death. His achievement, however, at one time hung in the church, but has been removed now for some years.

In the south chancel aisle against the south wall there is a finely sculptured monument by Carlini to Lady Shelburne, first wife of the Prime Minister. The inscription runs as follows:—

SOPHIA
Daughter
of John and Sophia Earl and Countess Granville, Wife
of William Earl of Shelburne, Baron Wycombe, Mother
of John-Henry Viscount Fitz-Maurice and William Granville Petty,
Died in the twenty-sixth year of her age,
On the sixth of January, MDCCLXXI.

"Her price was far above rubies.
Her children arise up and call her blessed;
Her husband also, and praiseth her."
Solomon.

Above are figures of her Ladyship standing by an urn with a child in her arms and an older boy in front. The whole group is thrown into relief by a background of dark marble, pyramidal in shape and having a coronet projecting from the apex over her Ladyship's head. The monument is protected by an iron railing of the same description as that round Lord Shelburne's in the north chancel aisle.

In the popular Memoirs of Mrs. Schimmelpenninck, the well-known authoress, a curious story connected with Bowood, the seat of the Marquis of Lansdowne, is related as having occurred whilst the celebrated Dr. Priestley was librarian there to Lord Shelburne.

"One day," says Mrs. Shimmelpenninck, "Mr. Petty, the precocious and gifted youth, sent for Dr. Priestley, Lord Shelburne, Mr. Petty's father, being then absent, I think, in London. When the Doctor entered, Mr. Petty told him he had passed a very restless night, and had been very much disturbed by uncomfortable dreams, which he wished to relate to Dr. Priestley, hoping that by so doing, the painful impression would pass away.

"He then said he dreamed he had been very unwell." when suddenly the whole household was in preparation for a journey. He was too ill to sit up, but was carried lying down in the carriage. His surprise was extreme in seeing carriage after carriage in an almost interminable procession. He was alone, and could not speak: he could only gaze in astonishment. The procession at last wound slowly off. After pursuing the road for many miles towards London it at last appeared to stop It was the church at High at the door of a church. Wycombe, which is the burial place of the Shelburne family. It seemed in Mr. Petty's dream that he entered, or rather was carried into the church. He looked back; he saw the procession which followed him was in black. and the carriage from which he had been taken bore the resemblance of a hearse. Here the dream ended, and he awoke.

"Dr. Priestley told him that his dream was the result of a feverish cold, and that the impression would soon pass off. Nevertheless, he thought it best to send for the family medical attendant. The next day Mr. Petty was much better; and the third day he was completely convalescent, so that the Doctor permitted him to leave his room; but as it was in January, and illness was prevalent, he desired him on no account to leave the house, and, with that precaution, took his leave. Late the next afternoon the medical man was returning from his other patients, his road lay by the gates of Bowood, and as Lord Shelburne was away he thought he might as well call to see Mr. Petty and enforce his directions, what was his surprise, when he had passed the lodge, to see the youth himself without his hat playfully running to meet him! The Doctor was much astonished, as it was bitterly cold and the ground covered with snow. He rode towards Mr. Petty to rebuke him for his imprudence, when suddenly he disappeared—whither he knew not, but he seemed instantaneously to vanish. The Doctor thought it very extraordinary, but that probably the youth had not wished to be found transgressing orders, and he rode on to the house. There he learned that Mr. Petty had just expired."

This story, I take it, relates to the Hon. William Granville Petty, the second son of William, Earl of Shelburne, named in the above inscription, who was buried at Wycombe, Feb. 5, 1778.

IN THE NORTH PART OF THE CHURCH.

On the floor in the north aisle lies the upper portion of a slab formerly in the north chancel aisle. It contains a remarkably well cut portrait of a gentleman of the Stuart period; but unfortunately it got accidentally broken in 1895, and although it has been since very carefully pieced together again, the fracture has somewhat destroyed the beauty of the features. The lower portion of the slab has been lost, and it is therefore impossible to give a copy of the inscription; but it is supposed to commemorate William Coombe, Alderman of the Borough, 1657.

Under the west window of the north aisle there was formerly a square slab which contained the following brief announcement:

GEORGE CLEWER is dead. March 19, 1701. Aged 55.

The person thus briefly commemorated died during his Mayoralty under the following curious circumstances. He was a native of Wycombe, and just previous to his death he went to London, and seeing a piece of stone in a mason's yard, and thinking it would do very well for his gravestone, he purchased it, and ordered the words

"George Clewer is dead" to be engraved upon it. The next day he started home to Wycombe, and arrived as far as Uxbridge, when he was taken ill and died in a few hours.

The identical stone, with the date of his death added, marked the spot where his remains were deposited; but what has become of it no one appears to know.

On the east wall of the north chancel aisle is a neat tablet, thus worded:—

Sacred to the memory of The Revd. ISAAC KING, LL.B.
Twenty-five years vicar of West Wycombe
in the County of Bucks, who

"After he had served his own generation by the Will of God, Fell on Sleep."
Born March the 21st 1776. Died January the 20th 1832.
This tablet is erected by his sorrowing widow and children As a testimony of their affliction.

In the north aisle beginning from the west end:

To the Memory of
JOHN HOLLIS Esq.
who during a long life unremittingly practised the benevolent virtues of his ancestors.
He expired at his residence in this town,
On the 26th day of November 1824.
Aged 81.

"He delivered the poor that cried: the fatherless, and him that had none to help him."

John Hollis was the son of Isaac Hollis and the last descendant in the male line of an opulent family well-known in Buckinghamshire, in which county they settled after removing from Yorkshire about the middle of the seventeenth century. He was born in Erston Street, Wycombe, in 1745. As a country gentleman possessed of considerable property few could have led a less unostentations life, or pursued a more fervent or heartfelt course in the charitable distribution of his wealth than did John Hollis. He had received a liberal education, and was on intimate terms with many eminent men of his day, particularly the celebrated Dr. Samuel Parr; and he was also in close friendship with that distinguished artist, John Opie, of the Royal Academy, and the intimacy continued until that painter's death in 1807. Mr. Opie often visited his friend at Wycombe, and was entertained with the hospitality befitting a gentleman. In early life Mr. Hollis published anonymously a small volume of poems with no other acknowledgment prefixed to the title-page than that they were the production of "A Young Man." In more mature years the author appears to have regretted this effort of the Muse; for in a copy of the poems belonging to a friend of his he penned the following remark—"A simple young man indeed!" After leading a long life of genuine benevolence he died at Wycombe in the 81st of his age.

In a vault in the chancel of this church is deposited FANNY

Relict of John Stone James Esq.

Barrister at Law,
in which profession his upright conduct and ability distinguished him.

After a beneficent, pious,
and truly Christian life
tranquilly resigned for immortality and endless bliss, the 7th of July 1831,
in the 85th year of her age.
She rests here in "holy hope" with three beloved daughters and two sons:
Fanny, who died in the 21st
Harriet, in the 18th, John, in the 16th,
Robert in the 14th, and Mary,
in the 12th year of their ages.

Lovely as seraphs and as cherubs bright, Pure as the dew-brilliant as morning light, Thy native goodness and thy mental grace, On fond remembrance leave a lasting trace. Like rare exotics, whose attractive bloom, Unfolds to captivate—but withers soon. So thou! with nature's choicest gifts replete, In higher climes thy full perfection meet. Lamented is thy transient sojourn here, Ye watchful angels, guard their precious dust, Still o'er thy ashes falls affection's tear! Till raised by "faith," from earth's surrendering trust; And heaven! do thou, the miscreant's arm arrest That impious would that sacred spot molest. Fierce let thine anger pour, in vengeance shed Thy wrath upon invaders of the dead. This consecrated pile, which sure should prove The resting-place of piety and love. Let none e'er enter that would dare Disturb those ashes in this "House of Prayer."

On a plain slab in the north chancel aisle is the following inscription:—

Near to this spot, long unrecorded, lie Ashes and dust; all that of Clark could die, Student and critic of the sacred page, E'en from a child he wrought, to hoary age.

For Christ he laboured, as his work attests; In Christ he trusted, and with Christ he rests. These lines his far removed grandson doth indite, Though late, yet better thus, than to be silent quite.

Samuel Clark, M.A.
Sometimes Fellow of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, and rector Grendon-Underwood in this county.
B. 12 Nov. 1626, D. 24 Feb. 1701.

Also of Sarah his wife
Daughter of the Reverend Nathaniel Lancaster, D.D.
Rector of Torporley.
D. 5 Nov. 1694, Æt. 66.

Samuel Clarke, author of "Biblical Annotations and Concordance," was presented to the Rectory of Grendon Underwood in 1657, and ejected by the Act of Uniformity in 1661. He died at High Wycombe.

On the west wall of the north chancel aisle:-

This Tablet
is designed to perpetuate
The Memory
of Samuel Rotton Esq.

In the 60th year of his age

Also
Of Sarah, his wife who died
5th of December 1827:
In the 86th year of her Age.

The above named Sarah Rotton was a great-grand-daughter of Richard Cromwell. Her maiden name was Clarke, the surname assumed by R. Cromwell after he retired into private life.

On a slab fixed to the east wall is an inscription in Latin to the memory of William Bradshaw, to which are appended verses contributed by his four surviving sons.

Arms: Argent, two bends sable.
